kāh 1 काह् or kah कह् । एकादश card. e.g. (pl. dat. kāhan काहन्, Śiv. 522, L.V. 95), eleven (Gr.Gr. 76); kāh, Rām. 1740; kah, K.Pr. 91, 95, 153; YZ. 82; kahai, only eleven (K.Pr. 97, W. 124). As a rule kah is used in the Musalmān dialect and kāh in the Hindū dialect. —shĕth —श्थ् । एकादश शतम् card. e.g. eleven hundred. With kāh, hath becomes shĕth (Gr.Gr. 84, Rām. 740 1).

kāha-nēth^{a}r काह-नेथ्र् । जातकर्मनामकरणे m. N. of a certain Hindū birth-ceremony. On the eleventh day after birth (if all goes well) the mother ceases to be impure. The kāh-nēth^{a}r ceremony is then performed. A Brāhman priest is summoned, and the mother drinks the five products of a cow. The seven birth-room vessels (see hur^{i}-lĕj^{u}, p. 346*b*, l. 41) are filled with food of which relatives and friends partake. A tree is traced in chalk upon the wall, and the family astrologers cast the child's horoscope (see L. 259, kah nētar). -nôw^{u} -नोवु । एकादशनामवान् m. he who possesses eleven names; esp. the Hindū God Rudra (a form of Śiva) who appears under eleven forms, each of which again is a Rudra. The usual list of the names of these eleven Rudras is, in Sanskrit, Ajaikapad, Ahirbudhnya, Hara, Nirṛta, Īśvara, Bhuvana, Aṅgāraka, Ardha-kētu, Mṛtyu, Sarpa, and Kapālin. -röth^{u}r^{u} -रोथ्र् । दानविशेषद्रव्यम् f. N. of a present sent by a Hindū to his daughter's father-in-law and other relations on the eleventh day after the death of his father or other senior relation. It is on this day that the śrāddha ceremony for the deceased is performed.

kẽh कॅह्। किंचित् pron. indef. used either as a subst. or as an adj.

[It has in the singular two sets of forms, one animate, the other inanimate. In the nominative singular animate it has a set of forms which are confined to the masculine, and of which the distinguishing vowel is u, and another set of forms which are of common gender, and of which the distinguishing vowel is a. In the other cases of the singular it is of common gender.

The inanimate forms of the singular are all of common gender.

In the plural there is no distinction between animate and inanimate, and all forms are of common gender.

The simplest forms of the sg. nom. are kũh (an. m.), kãh (an. c.g.), and kẽh (inan. c.g.). To these ṭs is added as an indefinite suffix, so that we get some such form as kũhṭs, kãhṭs, or kẽhṭs respectively, but such forms are now obsolete, although grammarians give a form kẽṭs or kẽnṭs, which is now not used except in the nom. plur. (cf. Gr.Gr. 67, 91). In Rām. 150 there is, however, the form kẽhṭsh-āh, and this is the only instance yet noted of the preservation of the h before the ṭs.

This form kẽhṭshāh leads us to the second set of nominative forms used at the present day. Under the rule of Kāshmīrī phonetics that a final surd must be aspirated, kũhṭs, kãhṭs, and kẽhṭs regularly become kũhṭsh, kãhṭsh, and kẽhṭsh respectively. These have been contracted to kũṭsh (L.V. 60), kãṭsh, and kẽṭsh, to which the suffix āh of the indefinite article is added, so that we finally arrive at the forms kũṭshāh, kãṭshāh, and kẽṭshāh, which are now in everyday use, as optional forms of kũh, kãh, and kẽh respectively.

The suffix ṭs is not used in the oblique cases of the singular, which have special forms, but reappears in the plural, where it is used throughout.

For the singular oblique cases, the animate form is kaĩsi and the inanimate form is kuni.

For the plural, the nominative is kẽh, kẽṭs or kẽnṭs, or kẽṭshāh, and the base of the oblique cases is kẽṭs.

The above remarks primarily refer to the use of this pronoun as a subst. Its use as an adjective is very similar, but is more lax and will be dealt with later on.

The following are therefore the forms occurring in declension :—

Singular, nominative; animate; masculine, kũh कूँह् (K. 578, 795), kũṭshāh कूँट्शाह् (Gr.M.); common gender, kãh काँह् (El. kahn) (L.V. 107; Śiv. 79, 81, 85, 214, 423, 985, 997, 1189; Rām. 139, 164, 504, 720, 729, 770, etc.; H. i, 2; vi, 10; xii, 2), kãṭshāh काँट्शाह् (Śiv. 356–7, Rām. 884).

Inanimate, common gender, kẽh कॅह् (El. kihn) (Śiv. 309, 329, 589, 594, 636, 647, 984, etc.; Rām. 149, 360, 520, 559, etc.; L.V. 9, 11, 19, etc.); kẽṭshāh कॅट्शाह् (Śiv. 117, 974, 1529; Rām. 162, 587, 653, 1081) (kẽhṭshāh कॅह्ट्शाह्, Rām. 150). In old Kāshmīrī we have also kũh कुँह् (L.V. 2), and kũṭsh (L.V. 60).

All oblique cases except gen., an. kaĩsi कॅसि (Śiv. 1216, 1228, 1460; Rām. 133, 139, 215–6, 543, 1093, 1220, 1230, 1597, 1621, 1780; H. ii, 8; iii, 3; L.V. 35) or kõsi कॉसि (K.Pr. 171, 208; H. v, 9); inan. kuni कुनि (Śiv. 306, 1281, 1757; Rām. 780).

Gen. an. kaĩsi-hondᵘ कॅसि-हंदु (Rām. 381, 754, 881, 1228); inan. kunyukᵘ कुन्युकु (see bel.).

Plural, an. and inan., c.g. nom. kẽh कॅह् (Śiv. 123; Rām. 778, 861–3, 1071–6, 1379; L.V. 32); kẽṭs कॅट्स or kẽnṭs केन्ट् (Gr.Gr. 67, 91) or kẽṭshāh कॅट्शाह् (Gr.M.); dat. kẽṭsan कॅट्सन् (Gr.M., K.Pr. 102); gen. kẽṭsan-hondᵘ कॅट्सन्-हंदु (Gr.M.); ag., abl. kẽṭsau कॅट्सी (Gr.M., K.Pr. 102).

It will have been observed that in all the above forms, except kaĩsi, the stem vowel is long and is nasalized, thus, ũ, ã, ẽ. In writing in the Nāgarī or Śāradā character the nasalization is often represented by an n before ṭs, thus, kũnṭshāh कून्ट्शाह्, kãnṭshāh कान्ट्शाह्, kẽnṭshāh केन्ट्शाह्, kẽnṭs केन्ट्, kẽnṭsan केन्ट्सन्, kẽnṭsau केन्ट्सी. This perhaps indicates a real variation of pronunciation, but, so far as the present writer's experience goes, there is no true n-sound, but only a nasalization of the vowel except in the nom. pl. kēnṭs, in which the n is generally distinctly audible. The vowel is also very commonly written and pronounced short throughout, thus, ũ, ã, ẽ. This is particularly common in the Musalmān dialect (e.g. in H.), but also occurs in Hindū poetry, so that we get kũh कुँह کُنه (El. kuhn) (Śiv. 311; Rām. 715, 1076, 1762; L.V. 2, 35, 60); kũṭshāh कुँछाह کُنچهاد; kãh काँह کنه (El. kahn); kãṭshāh काँछाह کنچهاد; kẽh कॅह کنه (El. kihn) (H. i, 6; ii, 5; iv, 4, 6; v, 8; viii, 2; ix, 6; xi, 15; xii, 6, 7, 15); kẽṭshāh कॅछाह کِنچهاد (H. vii, 26; x, 3; xii, 4, 5, etc.) or even kẽnṭsāh कन्छाह کِنچاد (H. vii, 20); kẽnṭs कन्ट्स, کِنچ; kẽṭsan कॅचन् کِنچن; kẽṭsau कॅचौ کِنچو.

The final h of kũṭshāh, kãṭshāh, kẽṭshāh is also sometimes omitted, so that we get kũṭshā कुँछा, kãṭshā काँछा, kẽṭshā कॅछा. In the Persian character, moreover, the final āh of these three words is often written ah, so that we get kũṭshah کوُنچهه, kãṭshah کانچهه, kẽṭshah کِنچهه, etc. There are other minor variations of spelling, which it is unnecessary to note here.

When used as an adjective, all the forms given above for the use of this pronoun as a substantive may be employed, number for number, case for case, an. masc. for an. masc., an. e.g. for an. e.g., and inan. for inan. Moreover kũh (kũh), kãh (kãh), kẽh (kẽh), or kẽṭshāh (kẽṭshāh), etc., may be used without change to agree with any inan. noun in any case of either number. The following examples of adjectival use occur in the literature at present available:—An. m. sg. nom. kũh कुँह (Rām. 373); kũh कूँह (K. 419); kãh काँह (Śiv. 35; Rām. 1425, 1498; H. v, 8).

kàn[i] 3 कनि postpos. governing abl. (cf. kin[i], of which it is a variant). It also governs the dative if the governed noun or pronoun is or refers to a human being. It indicates locality, as in kala-kàn[i], at the head end (of an animal), and laṭi-kàn[i], at the tail end (H. xi, 9); route or method, as in dāri-kàn[i] (flung out) through the window (H. v, 4); and, esp., motion from, as in yĕs-kàn[i], from whom (it will escape) (H. ii, 8).

kani 2 कनि or kanĕn कनन् (cf. kin[i] and kun) postpos. governing abl. or, in the case of animate rational beings, the dat. Considered by native grammarians to be a sec. suff. It is used in various ways, viz.:—

(1) Governing the abl. of adverbs of place and other words, it indicates 'on to', and is u.w. vbs. of putting, and the like, as in anda-kani, (put) on the outer side (p. 31*b*, l. 43); apāri-kani, (put) on the other side (p. 39*a*, l. 30); ōra-kani, (put) on there, on the far side, or (H. v, 2) in that direction (p. 41*b*, l. 21); bŏna-kani, (put) down (p. 110*b*, l. 18); brōṭha-kani, (put) in front, (lay) before, (sit down) before (Rām. 268) (p. 128*a*, l. 39); hĕri-kani, (put) at the top (p. 367*a*, l. 39); khōwari-kani, (put) on the left side (Śiv. 1090) (p. 425*b*, l. 15); pĕṭha-kani, (put) above (everyone else), in the place of honour (Śiv. 1716), and so on.

Often the idea of 'putting', etc. is dropped, and the compound is used simply as an adv. or post.pos. (governing dat.), as in anda-kani, outside (Śiv. 422); bŏna-kani, below (H. iii, 2); brōṭha (or bōnṭha) -kani, in front; garas brōṭha-kani, opposite the house (Gr.M.; so H. ii, 3; iii, 1; viii, 11, etc.); labi-kani, at the edge (Śiv. 842, 1445, 1570); pĕṭha-kani, above, on the top of (H. viii, 1); wŏzali-kani (a bite) on the red side (of an apple) (K.Pr. 238).

In all the above cases it may be put into the genitive, and then forms and adjective indicating 'of' or belonging to such-and-such a position', as in anda-kanyuk[u] (f. -kanic[u]), of or belonging to what is outside, of or belonging to the outside; apāri-kanyuk[u], of or belonging to the opposite side; ōra-kanyuk[u], of or belonging to the far side; bŏna-kanyuk[u], of or belonging to below, nether; brōṭha-kanyuk[u], of or belonging to what is in front; hĕri-kanyuk[u], of or belonging to something on the top, and so on.

(2) So far we have dealt with kani as a post-position governing the ablative. The word with which it is compounded, anda, apāri, ōra, and so forth is put in the ablative because it is governed by kani. But adverbs of place can be placed independently in the ablative, and then indicate motion from. Thus: ōr, there; ōra, from there: yōr, here; yōra, from here, and so on. kani may also be compounded with these ablatives without changing their meaning. Here it is not a question of kani as a postposition governing the ablative, but one of kani as an adverb being suffixed, without changing the meaning, to another adverb indicating motion from. Thus, ōra-kani, means not only 'on there' (under 1), but also 'from there' (Śiv. 1674, Rām. 946) under this rule. Similarly we have hōra-kani, from there, thence; kōra-kani, whence? (Rām. 949); pata-kani, from behind (Śiv. 1734); tōra-kani, thence; yōra-kani, hence, or (relative) whence (Gr.Gr. 159); brōṭha-kani, from opposite, as well as 'in front'. Similarly, with nouns, we have ösa-kani (issuing) from the mouth (H. viii, 7); tālawa-kani (down) from the ceiling (H. viii, 6).

Similarly, as an adverb, kani is sometimes added pleonastically to an adverb of place, without causing a change of meaning. A good example is pĕṭh-kani (s.v. pĕṭh), above, in the upper portion; hence, in the place of honour (K.Pr. 103) (cf. pĕṭha-kani, ab.); tami pĕṭh[i]-kani, on the top of that, in addition to that (H. iii, 8).

(3) As a postpos. kani may also indicate the reason for anything, as in ad[a]ri-kani (p. 15*a*, l. 45), (money) for the sweetmeats; ami-kani or awa-kani (p. 54*b*, l. 37; p. 55*b*, l. 36) for that reason, therefore; humi-kani or huwa-kani, therefore; kami-kani or kawa-kani, wherefore? tami-kani or tawa-kani, therefore; yĕmi-kani or yĕwa-kani, wherefore; yimi-kani or yiwa-kani, for this reason (Gr.Gr. 159).

(4) As a further development of this sense it may often be translated by 'for', in the sense of 'as a substitute for', 'instead of', 'in the place of', 'to serve as'. The following examples are mainly taken from Śiv., but the use runs through all literature; ashĕ-kani, (blood) instead of tears (Rām. 1483); bāri-kani, (silver used) as plaster (Rām. 568); dāji-kani, in place of a dowry (Śiv. 1677); dūpa-dīpa-k°, instead of incense and lamps (Śiv. 1692); dāra-k°, in place of wood (Śiv. 337); dāryau-k°, to serve as casements (Śiv. 340); kaharau-k°, serving as palankeen-bearers (Śiv. 84); laṭi-k° lashul[u], a besom used as a tail (K.Pr. 124); mŏkta-k°, instead of a pearl (Śiv. 1145); mŏkaṭa-k°, in place of a diadem (Śiv. 892); pakh[a]cau-k°, in place of the side-arms of a spinning-wheel (Śiv. 1014); pōshĕ-k°, instead of a flower (Śiv. 863; cf. 1692); rūda-k°, instead of rain (Śiv. 713); raṭhabāna-k°, serving as a charioteer (Śiv. 1146); sumi-k°, to serve as a bridge (Śiv. 1793); sŏna-k°, instead of gold (Śiv. 169); traṭi-k°, serving as a necklace (Śiv. 1557); wardanau-k°, (bark) for a bridal garment (Rām. 763); yikili-k°, to serve for a beam (K.Pr. 41); yōñĕ-k°, instead of a sacrificial thread (Śiv. 1014).

(5) As a postpos. governing a word signifying time or season, it indicates uncertainty (Gr.Gr. 159), as in ūtra-kani, about the day before yesterday (p. 68*b*, l. 21); az-kani, about to-day, perhaps to-day (p. 74*a*, l. 19); brōṭhus-kani, about, or perhaps, next year (p. 129*a*, l. 32); daḥum-kani, on about the tenth lunar day (p. 201*a*, l. 43); dā-phulayi-kani, at about the season of paddy flowering (dā-phulay, p. 230*b*, l. 12); hāra-kani, about the month of Hār (p. 343*b*, l. 44); har[a]da-kani, at about autumn (p. 348*a*, l. 12); köl[i]-kĕth-kani, on about the day after to-morrow (köl[i]-kĕth, p. 434*b*, l. 9); pagāh-kani, perhaps to-morrow (pagāh).

(6) Examples of other relations indicated by this postposition are :—āmpa-kani, by means of beak-to-beak feeding (H. viii, 1; perhaps incorr. for kàn[i] 3); kuni-kani, in any way (H. xii, 13); pata-kani, afterwards (H. x, 1); thür[u]-kani, (turning) backwards (H. v, 4).

In all the above (whether under head 2, 3, 4, 5, or 6) kani can be put into the genitive as under head 1, to indicate of or belonging to the motion from, reason, or indefinite time indicated.

kĕn कन्, an adverbial suff. added pleonastically in wuñ-kĕn, now, at present (Gr.M.; Śiv. 634, 841, 1713, 1718–9; Rām. 852); a by-form of kani.

kĕna कन, see kyon[u].

kin 2 किन् (Śiv. 1894–5), a by-form of kin[i], q.v.

kina किन । उत conj. or, as in suh kina bŏh, he or I (Gr.M.; K.Pr. 82, 121, kih nah; W. 153; YZ. 110, 206; Śiv. 923, 1664; Rām. 280, 289, 445, 450, etc.; H. v, 7; viii, 3, 11; xii, 18, 19, 23).

kīna कीन كينه । चलच्कोप: m. hatred, rancour, malevolence, malice, spite, grudge, resentment, animosity (El. kin and kinah, Rām. 802).

kin[i] किन्[इ] or occasionally (e.g. Śiv. 1894–5) kin किन् or kàn[i] कनि (q.v.) । पार्श्वत: postpos. (cf. kàn[i] 3, kani 2, kun, kāñ 2, and kiñ), governing ag. or abl. or occasionally the ag. of the gen. (as in himāla-sànd[i]-kin[i], Śiv. 728). There does not appear to be any distinction of meaning dependent on the case governed. The word primarily means 'from', as in achiv-kin[i], (tears falling) from the eyes (Rām. 284, 482, 1201, 1482); and[a]r[i]-kin[i], from within (p. 32*b*, l. 17); apör[i]-kin[i], from the far side (p. 39*a*, l. 42);

In this sense it is added pleonastically to adverbs already signifying motion from (Gr.Gr. 158) as in ati-kin¹, from there, thence; huti-kin¹, thence; kati-kin¹, whence? tati-kin¹, thence; yĕti-kin¹, whence (relative); yiti-kin¹, hence.

Sometimes it indicates progressive motion, the idea of 'from' being more or less dormant (cf. W. 97, kin, by the side of), as in bŏn¹-kin¹, below, in the sense of going along the foot of anything (e.g. an embankment) (p. 110*b*, l. 24); brũṭh¹-kin¹, not only 'from before', as ab., but also 'ahead', in the sense of going along in front of another person; ŏbī wati-kin¹, (to go) by the water route (Gr.M.); himāla-sȧnd¹-kin¹, via the Himâlaya (Śiv. 728); kōcĕ-kin¹, (wandering) through lanes (Rām. 44); khala-kin¹, by way of the threshing floor (Śiv. 1476); khŏshkī wati-kin¹, (to go) by the land route (p. 419*a*, l. 20); kŏlav-kin¹, (swimming) along the streams (Rām. 620); löriy-kin¹, via Lār (Śiv. 1894, so K.Pr. 124, lāri-kin¹).

With adverbs of place, it is even used pleonastically, and may altogether lose the root-idea of motion from. Thus, dachin¹-kin¹, on the right hand (Rām. 856), on the south (cf. ab.) (Rām. 1682); khōw⁴r¹-kin¹, on the left (Rām. 421, 856); nĕbȧr¹-kin¹, on the outside (Rām. 1558); outwardly (Śiv. 764); pachim¹-kin¹, on the west (Rām. 1681); pūr¹-kin¹, on the east (Rām. 1681); wŏtȧr¹-kin¹, on the north (Rām. 1682). Cf. buth¹-kin¹, face to face, bel.

It sometimes indicates reason or cause, as in ami-kin¹ or awa-kin¹ (p. 54*b*, l. 39; p. 55*b*, l. 39), for that reason, therefore; zānana-kin¹, through knowing (Gr.M.); āsana-kin¹, owing to being (so-and-so) (Gr.M.); bē-khabariyi-kin¹, owing to neglect (Gr.M.); anubawa-bāwa-kin¹, owing to the condition of perception (Śiv. 75, 982); murkha-bŏz¤-kin¹, owing to foolish thought (Śiv. 881); nirmala rūpa-kin¹, owing to (thy) pure form (Śiv. 886).

It often signifies a means or method, as in achiv-kin¹, by means of the eyes; hence (to come) as fast as one can see, (to come) at once (Śiv. 717); barau-kin¹, (looking) through the doors (Śiv. 958); dāri-kin¹, (to go out, or look) through a window (dŏr¤ 3) (Gr.M., K.Pr. 254, Rām. 331); ak⁴li-kin¹, by means of intelligence, to the best of one's intelligence (Rām. 546); kana-kin¹, by means of the ears, by hearing (Śiv. 1815); mana-tana-kin¹, (knowing) with mind and body (Śiv. 241); myŏn¹-kin¹, through, by means of me (Gr.M.); yōga-kin¹, by means of ascetic practices (Śiv. 984); zĕvi-kin¹, (singing) with the tongue (Śiv. 241).

Like the Hindī sĕ, it is very often used to form adverbs of manner, as in āgyāyĕ-kin¹, according to a command (Śiv. 1051); ȧnd⁴r¹-kin¹, inwardly (as well as 'from the inside') (Śiv. 764); avĕz¤-kin¹, wrongly (p. 71*a*, l. 7); bakta-bāganāyĕ-kin¹, by good fortune (Śiv. 411); buth¹-kin¹, impudently, audaciously (p. 142*b*, ll. 10 ff.); face to face (Rām. 152, 920); (falling) on the face (Rām. 5, 8, 926, 1176, 1180, 1201, 1242, 1354); dȧna-kin¹, (to return) like a hockey-ball (p. 222*a*, l. 38); hence, to retort; darma-kin¹, devoutly (p. 244*b*, l. 20) (Śiv. 428); dayāyĕ-kin¹, in a kindly way; as interj. please! have the kindness to (p. 267*a*, l. 3); hōshĕ-kin¹ with due care and attention (p. 353*a*, l. 27), carefully, heedfully (Rām. 1286); lōla-kin¹, affectionately (Śiv. 702); kuni-kin¹, in some way or other (p. 390*a*, l. 34) (Rām. 780); mana-kin¹, with the mind, with heart and soul (Śiv. 62, 272, 335, 1534); nāwa-kin¹, (known) by name (Śiv. 1289); parhēza-kin¹, cautiously (parhēz, caution) (Gr.M.); pȧz¹-kin¹, in truth (Rām. 1149); rāma-rūpa-kin¹, in the person (or in the character) of Rāma (Śiv. 701; so 737, 778); ranga-kin¹, in appearance (Śiv. 1366); tawāzau-kin¹, politely (tawāza, politeness) (Gr.M.); zarra-kin¹, ever so, little, hardly at all (zarra, an atom) (YZ. 231).

kōn (? spelling) m. the branch of a tree (El. who gives kón on p. 8, and koṇi on p. 159). Perhaps the same as kôn¤ 2.

kŏna क्षण। नौरन्ध्ररोधनम् f.pl. the caulking of a boat. (This is done by packing in a kind of grass rope between the planking; cf. kôn¤ 5 and kŏṭh¤). —kaḍañĕ —कडञ। नौरन्ध्रपूरकरज्जुनिष्कासनम् f.pl.inf. to pull or pick out the caulking between the planks of a boat; met. to pick holes in a person's character, to criticize unfavourably.

kōna कोन । किं न adv. how not? why not? (e.g. suh kōna yiyi, why will he not come?) (K.Pr. 30, kunah; 173, 251, 253, konah; YZ. 28; Śiv. 87, 309, 487, 1559, 1704; Rām. 76, 215, 352, 436, 664, 769, 1186, 1217, 1484, 1588–9, 1615–6, 1635, 1769, 1775; H. viii, 1; K. 141, 264, 341, etc.).

könī कानी adj. e.g. in Rām. 1141, lāl-i könī, translated in the Skt. commentary by 'ratnaṁ bahumūlyam', a jewel of great price. The phrase probably represents the Pers. لعل كاني, a ruby of a mine, i.e. a genuine, not artificial, ruby.

kon^{u} कंनु । आह्वायकः m. a summoner, the man sent by her people to invite a young bride on a visit from her husband's house. (The invitation is a matter of some ceremony, and must be accompanied by a present to the husband, L. 262). kàn^{i}-wôl^{u} कंनि-वोलु । आह्वायकः n.ag. (f. -wājĕñ -वाज्यम्), id.

kôn^{u} 1 कोनु । सूचगुटिका, सूचगोलकः m. a ball of thread as it is made on the spinning wheel (K.Pr. 259).

kön^{i} barana yin^{i} कानि वरन यिनि । आन्त्रीयाङ्गनाड्यादितुन्निः m. pl. inf. pass. the balls of thread to become filled up; hence, met. (when a person has been reduced to a skeleton by famine or disease, and receives relief or is convalescent) the filling out of his internal organs and veins due to returned appetite and good food.

kôn^{u} 2 कोनु । क्षुद्रदण्डः m. a thin stick, a slight rod (cf. lashi-kôn^{u}, s.v. làsh^{i}); esp. one of the row of sticks set up in the ground by a weaver, on which he arranges the warp prior to putting it in a loom for weaving. Cf. gaba-kôn^{u}, p. 274*b*, l. 1.

kôn^{u} 3 कोनु in burza-kôn^{u}, a man whose profession it is to remove bark from birch-trees. See burza, p. 130*b*, l. 32. Cf. also lari-kôn^{u}, a house-broker, s.v. lür^{u}.

kôn^{u} 4 कोनु । काणः adj. (f. kön^{u} कानू), one-eyed, monocular, blind of one eye (K.Pr. 1, 14, 66, 95, 100, 249); cf. cipa-kôn^{u} and dōla-kôn^{u} (p. 211*b*, l. 16). —• often used to indicate clumsiness, or the like, as in atha-kôn^{u}, p. 59*a*, l. 33. —kalam —कलम् । काणीभूता लेखनी m. a one-eyed pen, i.e. a pen of which one side of the nib is damaged.

kön^{i}-bāgay कानि-बागय् । काणो विभागः f. a one-eyed division, an unfair division (looking more in one direction than another; hence, giving more to one person than another).

kāñi-àch^{i}-gäsh कांनि-अछि-गाश् । काणाक्षणः प्रकाशः m. the gleam of a one-eyed eye, i.e. of the eye of a one-eyed man (a very rare thing, and difficult to bring about); hence, met. used with reference to some object which is rare or difficult of accomplishment.

kôn^{u} 5 कोनु । नीरन्ध्रत्वं प्राप्तः adj. (f. kön^{u} कानू), having holes or orifices filled or choked up (e.g. a sieve choked up with dirt). Cf. kŏna.

kun 1 कुन्, incorr. for kun^{u}, q.v. (Śiv. 329).

kun 2 (? spelling) in kŏkar-kun (L. 366), fowl-cholera, see p. 432*a*, l. 37.

kun 3 कुन् । प्रति postpos. (cf. kanì 2 and kin^{i}) governing the dat. (Gr.M.), also used as a sec. suff. not governing any case (Gr.Gr. 160, Gr.M.); towards, in the direction of, to (W. 97). The following examples are taken principally from Śiv. and Rām. u.w. vbs. of motion (Śiv. 341, 532, 538, 654, 1010, 1193, 1196, 1209, 1275, 1437, 1555, 1560, 1709, 1722–3, 1745, 1860; Rām. 114, 205, 249, 388, 443, 495, 521, 750, 1193, 1207; H. viii, 6, 11).

(a) As postpos.:—ath-kun, towards that, in that direction (p. 55*b*, l. 20) (Gr.Gr. 160); biyĕ-kun, (going) anywhere else (H. xii, 4); dakhĕnas-kun, (reached to the south) (Rām 632); danjĕ-kun wuchun, to look towards the condition (p. 226*a*, l. 8), to calculate resources; kŏli-kun, towards the river (p. 437*b*, l. 42) (Gr.Gr. 161); mājĕ-kun, towards the mother (möj^{u}) (Gr.Gr. 161); mölis-kun, towards the father (Gr.Gr. 161); tas-kun, (love) towards him (YZ. 77); tath-kun, towards that, in that direction (Gr.Gr. 160); tĕ-kun phīr^{u}, she turned towards thee (Rām. 1275); wārĕ-kun, towards the garden (Gr.Gr. 161).

(b) As suffix:—ākāsh-kun, towards, or up to, the sky (Rām. 924, 1055); andar-kun, to within (p. 32*a*, l. 42); apôr^{u}-kun, to beyond (apôr^{u}); ōr-kun, in that direction (Gr.Gr. 160); ot^{u}-kun, in that direction (p. 53*a*, l. 13); bŏn-kun, downwards (p. 110*b*, l. 8) (Gr.Gr. 161); brŏṭh-kun, towards the front (p. 128*a*, l. 23) forwards; in future (Śiv. 1756); gām-kun, towards the village (p. 286*b*, l. 30) (Gr.Gr. 160); gara-kun, towards the house (Gr.Gr. 160, Rām. 1370); but garas-kun (Rām. 1090, 1693); hyor^{u}-kun, upwards (p. 367*a*, l. 34) (Rām. 1410, contrasted with tàl^{i}-kin^{i}, from below); kōr-kun, whither? (Rām. 513); nagar-kun, (went) to the city (Rām. 1554); tūr^{i}-kun, thither verily (Rām. 1254); wŏtur^{u}-kun, towards the north (Rām. 632; cf. 783); yipôr^{u}-kun, in this direction (W. 95); yāra-sond^{u}-kun, in the direction of the friend's (house) (H. x, 11).

From the idea of motion towards, there is developed the meaning of 'to' after verbs of saying, addressing, etc. (Śiv. 79, 86, 394, 429, 555, 708, 941, 1007, 1252, 1318; Rām. 55, 198, 208, 220, 252, 307, 371, 373, 379, 442, etc.; H. v, 2; vii, 4, 20, etc.), and various other dative senses, such as (making a bow) to (Śiv. 156); (looking towards or at) (Śiv. 584, 758, 760, 768, 1008, 1593, 1737; Rām. 245, 535–6, 670, 825, 980, 1048, 1084–5, etc.); (showing) to (H. vi, 5); (becoming manifest) to (L.V. 22, Śiv. 171); (turning the ear) to (Śiv. 544); (turning the mind) to, (having and inclination) to, (or taste) for, etc. (Śiv. 596, 750, 754, 1181, 1293, 1751); (devoting the mind) to (Rām. 565, 1134, 1673); (affection) to, (longing) for (YZ. 77; H. iii, 7; vii, 3); (good intentions) to (Rām. 521); (do service) to (Rām. 627); (give welcome) to (Rām. 751); (promise) to (Rām. 627); (arrive) at (Rām. 1167, 1428; H. x, 5); (happen) to (Rām. 536, 1116); (attach) to (Rām. 993, 1178); (wield a weapon) against (Rām. 40, 999); (go for refuge) to, (take refuge) with (Rām. 1291, 1478, 1584); (a test) in reference to, (a test) of (Rām. 459); (limbs pressed) to (limb) (Rām. 1117); akh akis-kun, one to, or against, the other (Rām. 518, 923).

A further development is the meaning 'in', 'at', as in :—akith-kun, on one side (H. xii, 14); ōr-kun, on the far side, over there, as well as 'in that direction'; andas-kun, at the end (H. xii, 6); ath-kun, there, as well as 'in that direction' (p. 556, l. 20); brōṭh- (or bōnṭh-) kun, in front (H. i, 8; K. 555), as well as 'in a forward direction' (p. 128*a*, l. 23); dachan-kun, on the right-hand side (dachyun^{u}) (W.); hyor^{u}-kun or hyūr^{u}-kun, at the top, as well as 'upwards' (p. 367*a*, l. 34); khôwur-kun, on the left (W. 129); kōr-kun or kot^{u}-kun, where? as well as 'whither?' path-kun, at the back, behind (Śiv. 1194; H. v, 8); afterwards (H. iii, 5; v, 5); finally, ultimately (Śiv. 1344, 1901); (with verb in future) behind (the present time); afterwards, in the future (Śiv. 70, 311); (with verb in past) behind (the present time), formerly, in the past (Śiv. 72, 425, 1908; K. 347); pĕṭh-kun, above, in the place of honour (K. 476, 516).

kyāh کیاہ । किम् pron. inter. [In the sing. this pron. is an. or inan., and the an. forms in some cases distinguish between the masc. and fem. genders. The inan. forms when used as substantival pronouns make no distinction of gender; but, when used as an adjectival pronoun, in the nom. either the inan. or the an. form may be used in agreement with an inan. noun. If the an. form is used it agrees with the noun in gender. In the plur. there is no distinction between an. and inan., and gender is distinguished only in the nominative.

The gen. sg. and pl. is used only as a substantival pronoun. When used as an adjectival pronoun in agreement with a noun in the gen. sg., the pronoun is put into the an. dat. if the noun is an. masc. (as in kamis nĕciv^{i}-sond^{u}, of what boy?). It is put into the inan. abl. if the noun is inan. masc. (as in kami k^{a}smuk^{u}, of what kind?), and is put into the an. fem. dat. if the noun is fem., whether an. or inan. (as in kami kōrĕ-hond^{u}, of what girl? kami kāmĕ-hond^{u}, of what work?). In the plural there is no difficulty. If the pronoun is adjectival and in agreement with any noun in the gen. plur., it is, as usual, put into the dative plural, as in kaman nĕcivĕn-hond^{u}, of what boys? kaman kōrĕn-hond^{u}, of what girls? kaman kāmĕn-hond^{u}, of what works?

In the an. dat. sg., kamis is used for both masc. and fem. if the pronoun is used substantivally; but if it is used adjectivally, in agreement with an an. fem. noun, the fem. form is kami, not kamis. The inan. dat. sing is used both substantivally and adjectivally.

Sg. nom. an. m. kus कुस्, kus^{u} कुसु (poet.); f. kŏssa क्कस्स; inan. kyāh क्याह्: dat. an. (m. and f.) kamis कमिस्, kas कस्; f. (only as adj.) kami कमि; inan. kath कथ्: gen. an. (m. and f.) kàm^{i}-sond^{u} कॅमि-सन्दु, kasond^{u} कसन्दु, kas कस्; inan. kamyuk^{u} कम्युकु, kawuk^{u} कवुकु: ag. an. and inan. m. kàm^{i} कॅमि; f. kami कमि: abl. an. and inan. (m. and f.) kami कमि, kawa कव. Pl. nom. m. kam कम्; f. kama कम: dat. (m. and f.) kaman कमन्: gen. (m. and f.) kaman-hond^{u} कमन-हॅन्दु, kahond^{u} कहॅन्दु, ag. and abl. (m. and f.) kamau कमौ, kamav कमव्. For most of the above forms see Gr.Gr. 89 and Gr.M. See also the references bel.

In the word kyāh क्याह्, the final h is often dropped, so that we also find kyā क्या. In the Persian character the word is generally written kyah or kĕh کِہ (Gr.M., K.Pr. 15).]

Who? which? what? dĕṭha kyāh, a great deal; see dĕṭha. As an adjective kyāh in all its adjectival forms is sometimes used in an exclamatory sense, i.e. what! in the sense of our 'what a!', 'how wonderful!', 'how beautiful!', 'how extraordinary!', and so on, as in kami lōla, with what (passionate) love (Śiv. 957; so L.V. 78; Śiv. 426, 661, 812, 814, 943, etc.; Rām. 4, 22, 155, 175, 556, 769; K. 223). Cf. the use of the word kyāh as an interjectional adv., bel., p. 500*a*, l. 12.

Or, again, this pron. may be used contemptuously to mean 'what?', in the sense of 'nothing at all' or 'very petty', as in tŏmbi kus kan, who (i.e. no one) will pierce the ears (Śiv. 1290); wuñ kyāh pĕv, now what has fallen? i.e. what has fallen now is a mere nothing (Śiv. 1294; so Śiv. 1811); wāti kas and, for whom (i.e. for no one) will she reach completion? (Rām. 128).

This pronoun, compounded with the indefinite pronoun kūh, itself takes an indefinite meaning, as in kūh kus, anyone whatever (Rām. 715); kūh kyāh, some kind or other of (Rām. 231, 373); kūh kath jāyĕ, in any place, anywhere (Rām. 689); kūh kami sāta, at any time (Rām. 836).

kĕh کیہ for kyah (i.e. kyāh, see ab.) in the following:—kĕhŏ کیہُ or kĕhō کیہو । किं भोः adv. an inter. particle, i.q. kyā and kyāh, bel., used familiarly in addressing a younger or inferior male; cf. the next and kyā-bā, bel. (kĕhŏ, H. v, 4, 5; kĕhō, K.Pr. 87). kĕhay کیہیَ । किं भोः adv. the same as the preceding, but used when addressing a younger or inferior female. Cf. kyā-biñ, bel.

kas कस् an. sg. dat. to whom? as subst. (L.V. 17, 21, 33; Śiv. 278, 286, 583, 738, etc.; Rām. 218, 340, 447; 1620 f.; K. 290, 304, 545, 581, 846). In Rām. 1347 kas and kamis are used side by side with identical meanings. As adj. (Rām. 351 m., 1319 f.). Often used as an an. sg. gen. (or dat. of possession) (Śiv. 91, 189, 243, 324, 585, etc.; Rām. 1576; K. 175, 1057, 1111, etc.). Used with force of acc. whom? (Śiv. 249, 534, 1298, etc.; Rām. 1307). The use of this form as an adj. is rare. The only instance noted is kas dēvas, to what god? (Śiv. 243).

kasū कसू, i.q. kas, with interjectional suffix ū, to whom? (Rām. 211, 1532). Cf. kamū, ab.

kŏsa कस poet. for kŏssa. See kus, bel. (Rām. 1609).

kus कुस or (e.g. L.V. 39) kus[u] कुसु (f. kŏssa कस्स, or (poet.) kŏsa कस, or (vill.) kusa कुस. See kŏssa, bel.), sg. nom. m. an. (and, as adj., also inan.) who? as subst. (L.V. 7, 78, 88; Śiv. 47, 243–9, 432, 472, etc.; Rām 176, 238, 293, 738, etc.; K. 31, 98, 327, etc.; H. xi, 2; xii, 1); as adj. an. (L.V. 14, 39; Śiv. 1887; Rām. 882, 1324); as adj. inan. (L.V. 78; Śiv. 1062, 1226, 1770, 1831, 1912; Rām. 1605; K. 1161). With emph. y, kusuy, who really? (H. xi, 19). —hyuh[u] —ह्युहु । कीदृश एव adj. (f. kŏssa hish[ü] कस्स हिशू), like what? what kind of? (Gr.M.). —kus —कुस् who or which of several (f. sg. nom. kŏssa kŏssa कस्स कस्स, etc.; H. x, 6, kusa kusa कुस कुस). —sana —सन or —sanā —सना । क: स्वित् pron. inter. (f. kŏssa sana कस्स सन or —sanā —सना; inan. kyāh sana क्याह सन or —sanā —सना, q.v., bel.), i.q. kus, but implying a shade of doubt (Gr.Gr. 180 ff.), quasi 'I wonder what', 'what kind of' (L.V. 39, kawa sana, adj. inan. sg. abl.; Śiv. 1600, kami sana; Rām. 1408, kus sanā wādur, I wonder what monkey (this is); so K. 287, kŏsa sana). Hence, often used indefinitely, 'I wonder who,' i.e. 'someone or other' (Rām. 834, m. sg. ag. kàm[i] sanā). —tām —ताम् । कश्चित् m. (L.V. 56; YZ. 49, 53, 151, 209, 264; Rām. 502, 1361; K. 319, 608). -bāpath -बापथ् । किं निमित्तम् adv. for what? why? -khöt[a]ra -खोत्र् । किमर्थम् adv., id. -kani -कनि । किमर्थम् adv., id. -kin[i] -किनि । केन हेतुना adv. for what cause? wherefore? why? -kanĕn -कनन् । किमर्थम् adv., id. -pata -पत । कस्मात्पश्चात् adv. after what? since what? since when? -puthy -पुथ् । कस्माद्धेतो: adv. for what reason? why? (Rām. 765; K. 9, 87, 996). —ranga —रंग । केन प्रकारेण adv. in what manner? how? —sana —सन, see kus sana, ab. (L.V. 39).

kawā कवा । केन हेतुना भो: by what? how? i.q. kawa, but used when addressing a male equal or inferior. Cf. kaway, bel.

kawau कवौ, or kawō कवो (= kawa, with interj. au, ō), O why? (YZ. 270, kawō, addressed by a woman to her beloved). kawau-bāpath कवौ-बापथ् adv. O why? (Rām. 107, addressed by a man to a man).

kuwa कुव adv. by what means? how? poet. for kawa (H. v, 9).

kaway कवय । केन हेतुना भो: adv. by what? how? i.q. kawa, but used in addressing a female equal or inferior; cf. kawā, ab. (Śiv. 578). -bāpath -बापथ् adv. for what? why? used as ab. (Rām. 1017–22).

kawuk[u] कवुकु । कथं नाम (नहीति) adj. (f. kawüc[u] कवंचू), sg. gen. inan. of what? genl. used as adv. how? (incredulously); hence, equivalent to a negative.

kyā क्या, i.q. kyāh (H. vi, 5), but, when so spelt, generally used as a mere inter. particle, indicating a question. Occasionally in this way it has the force of a particle of emphasis, as in yihuy kyā gav Sadāśiv, this person is no other than Sadāśiva, or who else is it but Sadāśiva (Śiv. 821). -bā -बा । किं भ्रात: adv., i.q. kyā, but employed only when addressing a brother or other male person of equal rank; cf. kĕhō, ab., and the two next. -biñ -बिञ् । किं भगिनि adv., i.q. kyā, but used only in addressing an elder sister or other female of superior rank; cf. the preceding and kĕhay, ab. -sa -स or -sö -सो । किमङ्ग adv., i.q. kyā, but used only in addressing an elder male, or one of superior rank. Also, i.q. kyā sana, bel. (Gr.Gr. 181). —sana —सन or —sanā —सना । किं स्वित् adv. an inter. particle, i.q. kyā, but indicating doubt, as in kyā sana khĕwān chwā or kyā sanā khĕwān chuh, what, is he really eating? kyā sanā tàt[i] āsyā, I wonder will he be there (Gr.Gr. 180). —zan —ज़न् । किं नाम adv. what like? what sort of?

kyāh क्याह or (see ab., p. 497*b*, l. 4) kyah or kĕh کیہ । किम् inan. sg. nom. what? As subst. (L.V. 21, 34, 42, etc.; K.Pr. 15; YZ. 146, kyah; 233, kyāh; Śiv. 58, 158, 160, 164, 203, 225, 323, etc.; Rām. 122, 157, 234–5, 238, etc.; K. 34, 39, 49, 141, etc.; H. ii, 2; 4, 11; iii, 4, 8, 9, etc.). kĕh na ta kyāh,

(there is) nothing, so what (is there), i.e. all is vanity (L.V. 19). As adj. (Śiv. 83, 160, 426, 643, 721 (fem. inan.), 908, 910, 923, etc.; Rām. 10, 51, 152, 158, 160, 164, etc.; K. 317, 361, 524, 528, etc.).

The word kyāh or kyā or kyah is often used as a mere inter. particle, indicating that a question is asked. Thus, kyāh chuh murts karān, does he make images? (Gr.Gr. 199; so, Gr.M., kyā or kyāh; L.V. 18, 66; Śiv. 710, 874, 913, 1562; Rām. 11, 48, 756, 1367, 1629; K 572, 1101, 1152; H. vii, 27, 28).

Again, it is sometimes used as an interjectional adv., as in jān kyāh, how good! (L.V. 89); kyāh zabar, how excellent! (W. 101; so, Śiv. 436, 499, 573, 870; Rām. 796, 892, 1197, 1200; H. vii, 27, 28); cf. kyāh kūt[i], how many! (Śiv. 742) and p. 485*a*, l. 29. Or it may be used adverbially in the sense of 'how', introducing a subordinate clause, as in wuch rath kyāh chuh pashpān, see the blood, how it is flowing, i.e. see how it bleeds (Gr.M.; so, Rām. 25, 686, 1147, 1221, 1224, 1338, 1353, 1372, 1380, 1522, 1751; K. 1136). Or it may be used as the equivalent of kyāzi (q.v.), why? (L.V. 67, 74; Rām. 222, 257, 347, 407, 1628, 1702, 1706; H. x, 14). Occasionally, like kyā, ab., it is little more than a particle of emphasis, as in tami kyāh kor[u], what did she do? i.e. it is no other than she who did it (Rām. 1145; so, H. v, 8, 9; viii, 1; ix, 10, etc.). yit[i] kyāh, here, in fact; here, you see (H. x, 12). yit[i] kyāh . . . ât[i] kyāh, here, you see on the one hand . . . there, on the other hand, you see (H. viii, 13); ada kyāh, then of course, of course, certainly (H. viii, 11; xii, 4).

Occasionally kyāh is used with a disjunctive force, as in kyāh Kīkī kyāh Kusalyā, whether Kaikēyī or Kauśalyā (Rām. 301); möj[u] kyā mās, mother or aunt (Rām. 734; similarly, Rām. 1038; H. iv, 7), and in kyāh . . . ada yā, whether . . . or (Rām. 845).

kyāh kĕtham क्याह् कथम् । किं कथम् adv. what's its name, what d'ye call it, n.w. ref. to something hitherto unknown, and which cannot be described by any name —sana —सन (Rām. 78) or —sanā -सना, see kus sana, ab, I wonder what (Rām. 78, 1391, 1493); as adj. (Ram 202; K. 608, 919); as adv. I wonder how, or why (Rām. 1348, 1493). To this another inter. is sometimes added, as in kyāh sanā kyāh, I wonder what on earth (Rām. 1306, 1421); kyā sana kus, I wonder who on earth (Rām. 1366); kya sanā kām[i], I wonder by whom on earth (Rām. 596); kyāh sanā kati, I wonder where on earth (Rām. 221, 253); kyā sanā kyuth[u] hyuh[u], I wonder what kind of (Rām. 1074). —tām —ताम् or —tāmath —तामथ । अज्ञातप्रायम् pron. what? used when the speaker is in doubt as to whether there is anything to ask, as in kyāh tām wonun, what did he say? i.e. did he say anything? Here the speaker did not notice at the time what the man said, and afterwards recalls the fact of his perhaps having spoken, and, being in doubt, asks the question (Gr.Gr. 256); something or other, something indefinite (L.V. 86); wuchiv tàm[i] kyāh tām korus shal, behold what deceit he did to him! behold how he deceived him! (Rām. 1417). —tāñ —ताञ् or —tāñĕth —ताञथ । अज्ञातप्रायम्, id. (Gr.Gr. 256; Śiv. 85; Rām. 146; K. 88, 181; all —tāñ); something or other (Rām. 432); wuchun gāṭul[u] chuh kyāh tāñ, see (i.e. test) how clever he is (Rām. 129).

kyuh[u] tām किहु ताम्. —tāmath -तामथ्, —tāñ —ताञ्, or —tāñĕth —ताञथ । कथयितुमशक्यः adj. that which cannot be described by any definitions, indefinable (cf. kyuth[u] tām, p. 502*b*, l. 4).

kyāwu क्याव् (L.V. 19) or kyōh क्योह् (L.V. 3, 5, 65), an old form of kyāh, used as a kind of disjunctive conjunction in the sense of 'whether . . . or', or 'as well as', in the phrase dĕn kyāwu (or kyōh) rāth, whether by day or by night, by day as well as by night, day and night, continually.

kyul[u] किल् or kyul । कीलकः, अयःशङ्कुः m. (sg. dat. kilis किलिस्), a wooden peg (e.g. a tethering-peg or a tent-peg) (El., Gr.Gr. 14); an iron nail, a spike (El.; Gr.M.; L. 462, kuil) (cf. nar-māda-k°, s.v. nar 2); met. (like our 'thorn') something that gives intense pain (cf. hyuk[u], p. 364*a*, l. 37); (abusively) a troublesome child; cf. kij[i]. kil[i]-sūr किलि-चूर् । कीलकचौरः m. a terribly daring and thorough thief (quasi one who, when robbing a house, carries away even the nails that hold it together).

kŏyul[u] क्रयिल् or क्रयुल् । पक्षिविशेषः m. a certain bird, described as red in colour, about the size of a sparrow, and as uttering a deep cry when flying up into the air.

kyom[u] क्यम् । क्रिमिः m. (sg. dat. kĕmis क्यमिस्), a worm, a maggot, a caterpillar, insect (El. kyum; Gr.M.; K.Pr. 81, 183; H. xii, 3, 4) (cf. nījĕ-k°, s.v. nīj[u] 1, and nāra-k°, s.v. nār). kĕm[i]-gŏs[u] क्यमि-क्यचू । क्रिमिकोषः f. a chrysalis, cocoon; esp. the cocoon of the silk-worm.

köyim कायिम्, often written köim कायम् قائم adj. e.g. fixed, established (Gr.M.). -mukām -मुकाम् قائم مقام m. one who acts in the place of another, a locumtenens (Gr.M.).

köyimī कायिमी, often written köimī कायमी (for قائمی) adj. e.g., i.q. the preceding (K.Pr. 216). Properly (قائمی) subst. f. fixity, permanence, but used ab. as adj.

kaymuh कयमुह् । क्षेत्रविशेषः m. N. of a considerable village of Kashmīr (the ancient Katimuṣa) on the left bank of the river Vĕshau (ancient Viśōka) (RT.Tr. ii, 55).

kiyāmath कियामथ् قیامت m. (sg. dat. kiyāmatas कियामतस् قیامتس), the resurrection, the last day (K.Pr. 214); confusion, tumult, uproar, an extraordinary to-do (K.Pr. 206).

kyonᵘ क्यनु । क्लिन्नः adj. (f. kĕnᵘ क्यंचू), wet, moist, damp; cf. kĕnun.

kĕna-bobᵘ क्यन-बंबु । जलफलभेदः m. N. of a certain aquatic fruit, found growing in lakes, described as red, but white inside, and containing many small seeds. -rab -रब् । घनपङ्कः f. the soft, but not liquid, mud first formed on a road by a slight shower; (in building) mud used as mortar.

kāyun कायुन् । आलस्यकरणम् conj. 1 (1 p.p. kôyᵘ कोयु), to make lazy, to make a person work as if he were lazy; to make (oneself) lazy, to 'ca' canny' (Gr.Gr. xiv); to cause procrastination.

kyūrᵘ क्यूर् । कूपः m. (sg. dat. kīris कीरिस्), a well, i.q. krūrᵘ 1, q.v. (El., K.Pr. 155).

kayīr कयीर् । शकुनः a certain bird (? a kind of partridge), described as haunting mountain forests, as having a variegated white and yellow plumage and a sweet voice.

kāyorᵘ 1 कायर्, kāyurᵘ कायुर्, sometimes written kāyirᵘ 1 कायिर् । काष्ठभेदः m. the wood of the yörᵘ, or Himalayan blue pine (El. kāyūr or kāur, Pinus excelsa; Gr.Gr. 139; K.Pr. 101; L. 79, 80, kairu; 456, kayur). This wood is very soft and easy to pierce; the word is hence used met. to indicate a person who is 'soft', i.e. weak, powerless, unresisting; cf. kāyorᵘ 2 and also aḍa-kāyurᵘ, p. 11*a*, l. 50. The shavings of this wood are used for torches (L. 80), and its fire is not lasting (K.Pr. 101). kāyiri-ṭᵘñᵘ कायिरि-ट्यूञु f. charcoal made from the wood of the pine-tree. It is used for making gunpowder (El.), and is much esteemed by blacksmiths (L. 80).

kāyorᵘ 2 कायर् or kāyurᵘ 2 कायुर्, sometimes written kāyirᵘ 2 कायिर् । निःसारः, अलसः adj. (f. kāyürᵘ कायर्ङ्, also written kāyirᵘ कायिर्ङ्), weak, feeble; (of a human being) weak, feeble, inert, lazy. Cf. kāyorᵘ 1 and also the Skt. kātarah.

kāyarun कायरुन् । निःसारीभवनम् conj. 3 (2 p.p. kāyaryōvᵘ कायर्यावु), to be or become soft, weak; (of a human being or animal) to be or become soft, weak, powerless, inert, lazy.

kāyĕrĕr कायर्यर् । निःसारता, अलसता m. the nature of pine-wood (Gr.Gr. 139); hence (cf. kāyorᵘ 1 and 2), weakness, softness; (of human beings, animals, etc.) softness, inertness, laziness.

kyusᵘ क्युसु । जलपक्षिभेदः m. (sg. dat. kisis किसिस्), a certain aquatic bird, the teal (querquedula crecca) (L. 129, keus; Śiv. 1811); cf. khyusᵘ 2. kisⁱ-pūtᵘ किसि-पूतु । जलपक्षिभेदपोतकः m. a young teal.

kayās कयास् (= قیاس) m. judgment, opinion (Gr.M.).

kyutᵘ क्युतु or क्युतु । अर्थे postpos. m. (pl. nom. kitⁱ किति; f. sg. kisᵘ किचू), for, for the sake of (Gr.Gr. 14; Gr.M.; W. 97, kiut); also forming advs. of time, see bel.

When used with the meaning of 'for', etc., kyutᵘ governs the dat., as in mölis-kyutᵘ, for the father; mālĕn-kyutᵘ, for the fathers. Like the 'postpositions of the gen., it is an adj., agreeing with the governing noun in gender, number, and case, as in mölis-kyutᵘ pôñᵘ, water for the father; mölis-kisᵘ gāy, a cow for the father; guris-kitⁱ rawa, blankets (nom. pl. m.) for the horse; mölis-kitsa pōthĕ, books (nom. pl. f.) for the father (Gr.Gr. 44).

Similarly, if the governing noun should be in the dat., we should have mölis-kitis pöñis, to the water for the father; mölis-kitsan gōvᵘn, to the cows for the father (Gr.Gr. 44), and so on for other cases. For instances of this use of kyutᵘ, see bel.

Special attention should be paid to the use of kyutᵘ with the infinitive and with the future passive participle of a verb. Used with the infinitive, it governs the dative in the ordinary way, as in yith pōthĕ paranas-kyutᵘ prang, a couch for reading this book (Gr.Gr. 114) (cf. esp. ninas-kyutᵘ, s.v. nyunᵘ). The fut. pass. part. has the same form as the infinitive, but is an adjective, its m. sg. nom. having the form karun, kaṛonᵘ, or karunᵘ. This adjective, combined in apposition with kyutᵘ, and agreeing with it in gender, number, and case, forms a passive verbal adjective of necessity, fitness, or purpose, like the Latin gerundive; thus cyonᵘ-kyutᵘ, intended to be drunk, potable (p. 179*a*, l. 43). So paronᵘ-kyutᵘ pŏstukh, a book (m. sg.) to be read, a book for reading (but we cannot say paronᵘ-kyutᵘ prang, as that would mean 'a couch to be read', not 'a couch for reading'); parüñᵘ-kitsᵘ pūthⁱ, a book (f. sg.) to be read; ranánⁱ-kitⁱ hākh, vegetables (m. pl.) to be cooked, i.e. for being cooked; karañĕ-kitsa kāmĕ, works (f. pl.) to be done (Gr.Gr. 115, Gr.M.); khyonᵘ-kyutᵘ, (food) to be eaten, something to eat (K.Pr. 248); bĕhunᵘ-kyutᵘ makān, a house to be dwelt in, in which to dwell (Rām. 591).

When used to form an adv. of time, kyutᵘ also governs the dat., but, being used adverbially, it often does not change its own form. As an adv. of time, it is more definite than kani. Thus, dā-phulạyi-kyutᵘ (p. 230*b*, l. 14) means, definitely, 'at the time of rice-blossoming', while dā-phulạyi-kani (p. 230*b*, l. 12) means 'in, or about, the time of rice-blossoming'. Kyutᵘ cannot be used in this sense with all words. Its chief use is to indicate a season, as ab. Other examples are bahāras-kyutᵘ, in the spring-time (p. 96*b*, l. 9); barsātas-kyutᵘ, in the rainy season (p. 127*a*, l. 40); bēli-wāpas-kyutᵘ, in the sowing season (p. 150*b*, l. 15); dŏhaiṭhas-kyutᵘ, in (so-and-so's) sixty-second year (p. 201*b*, l. 38); drāgas-kyutᵘ, in a time of famine (p. 241*b*, l. 42), and so on. In this sense it is sometimes added either pleonastically or with the sense of 'for' to advs. of time. Thus, rāth, to-night; az rāth-kyutᵘ sāl, an invitation for to-night; rāth-kyutᵘ, to-night or by night (Gr.M.; H. iii, 1); pagāh-kyutᵘ, for to-morrow (Gr.M.).

kitⁱ कितॅ m. pl. nom. chŏkas-kitⁱ dawāh, medicines for the wound (Rām. 1308; similarly, Rām. 1505; H. v, 1; xi, 11).

kitsᵘ कित्सु f. sg. nom. wöjᵘ kōrĕ-kitsᵘ, a ring for the daughter (H. v, 1; so, x, 11; xi, 12).

kyutᵘ कितु m. sg. nom. dŏhas-kyutᵘ, for a day, sufficient for a whole day (p. 200*a*, l. 47); biyis-kyutᵘ, for someone else (L.V. 61; so, Rām. 744; H. ii, 1; x, 5; xii, 4, 5, 11, 16, 24).

kyuthᵘ क्युथु or kyuᵘ क्युउ । कीदृशः pron. adj. (f. kitshᵘ कित्शु), of what sort? of what kind? (Gr.Gr. 153; Gr.M.; L.V. 84, 85); as adv. how? (Gr.M.; L.V. 74; H. ii, 5). —hyuhᵘ —ह्युहु (f. kitshᵘ hishᵘ कित्शु हिशु), i.q. kyuthᵘ, what kind of? kyāh sanā kyuthᵘ hyuhᵘ, I wonder what kind of (Rām. 1074; cf. kyāh sanā, p. 500*a*, l. 43). —sanā —सना adj. i.q. kyuthᵘ, but with a shade of doubt in the question, quasi 'really of what sort?' (cf. Gr.Gr. 180–1). —tām —ताम्, —tāmath —तामथ्, —tāñ ताञ्, or —tāñĕth —ताञथ् । केनापि नाम्ना वक्तुमशक्यः, अत्यरोचकः adj., i.q. kyuthᵘ, but with a shade of doubt, quasi 'I wonder of what sort'; that which cannot be described by any name, indefinable (cf. kyuthᵘ tām, p. 500*b*, l. 22); (contemptuously) what sort of? i.e. very unpleasing, bad, worth nothing, of no use.

kyowᵘ क्यॅवु । गवेधुः m. (sg. dat. kĕvis क्यविस्), a kind of plant growing in marshes. According to L. 72 (kĕr) it is Chaerophyllum sp., and is looked upon as an excellent substitute for carrots, both by the herdsmen and by the red bears. It has been identified at Kew as really Sagittaria sagittifolia, or Common Arrowhead, but possibly the name may be used for two different plants. For the manner in which its roots are joined together by a fibrous network, see kĕvⁱ-rāṭh, bel., and cf. Śiv. 1807. —kaḍun —कडुन् । गवेधुनिष्कासनम् m.inf. to root up one of these plants in the marshes. This is a long, slow business; hence, met. to spend a long time over completing any work.

kĕvⁱ-gŏgᵘjᵘ क्यॅवि-ग्वंजु । आख्याकारमूलविशेषः, अल्पालुकः f. a kind of turnip; a small potato. -gāsa -गास । मूलविशेषतृणम् m. the edible leaves of the kyowᵘ-plant. -mujᵘ -मुजु । बालमूलिका f. a young tuber of this plant, used as a vegetable. It is globular in shape; cf. mujĕ-kyowᵘ, s.v. mujᵘ. -mŏnḍᵘ -म्वंडु । मूलविशेषमहामूलम् f. a full-grown large tuber of this plant. It is also globular in shape. -nambal -नम्बल । मूलकविशेषोत्पत्तिस्थानम् f. a piece of marshy ground, in which this plant grows plentifully. -rāṭh -राठ । मूलविशेषव्रततिः f. (sg. dat. -rāṭhi -राठि), lit. the tangled roots of this plant, i.e. an underground fibrous network spread over a wide area, made up of the roots of this plant all tangled together. -zag -ज़ग । धान्यविशेषः m. N. of a kind of paddy yielding a red grain when husked (L. 463, kai zag).

kyāzi क्याज़ि । किमर्थम् adv. inter. why? (El.; Gr.M.; L. 464, kyāza; W. 99; L.V. 96, 107; Śiv. 87, 312, 534, etc.; Rām. 190, 288, 669, 719, 1245; K. 383; H. iii, 1; v, 8; etc.); because (El.); yimi sababa kyāzi, for this reason, because (Gr.M.); ti-kyāzi, because (Gr.M.; W. 99; H. viii, 7). —na —न । किमर्थम् न adv. why not?

kŏzi क़ाज़ि । कुत्सितवेलायाम् adv. at a bad time, in a time of calamities, etc., at an inauspicious time; at a wrong time, unseasonably. A contracted form of kŏ-vizi, q.v.

köz[i] क़ाज़ि قاضى । धर्मावगुणासकः m. a judge; (a Muslim) judge or magistrate (who passes sentence in all cases of law, religious, moral, or criminal), a Qāẓī; in Kashmīr, esp. a Muslim doctor of laws, who decides questions of religion and morality (Gr.M.; K.Pr. 101, 145). -bāy -बाय्। अवगुणासकस्त्री f. his wife.

kuza कुज़ (? cf. Pers. كوزه) m. a kind of sweetmeat (Gr.Gr. 15). Cf. nābad-kuza.

köz[i]gī क़ाज़िगी । ग्रासकत्वम् f. the office or duties of a judge (see köz[i]); a habit of acting as such a person.

kazāh कज़ाह् (= قضا) m. predestined fate; hence, the (predestined) time of death (Rām. 871).

kazāl[i] कज़ालि f. blackness; blackness of mood, harshness, a dark temper (Rām. 1570).

kazul कज़ुल । कज्जलम् m. (sg. dat. kazalas कज़लस्), lamp-black, soot; as adj. sooty, black (YZ. 147).

kŏ-zan क़-ज़न् m. a bad man, a wicked person, a sinner (K.Pr. 202).

kōzana कोज़न । न जाने किमिव adv. who knows? God knows! used in sentences such as kōzana kyāh bani tas, God alone knows what will become of him; hence, who knows how? God knows how! who knows by what means (L.V. 73, 74). kōzanañi कोज़नञि f. sg. abl. of sg. gen. how? by what means? (L.V. 72).

kŏ-zāth क़-ज़ाथ । कुत्सितजातिः adj. e.g. (as subst, sg. dat. -zātas -ज़ातस), of bad, or low, caste, low-born; used also, as a term of reproach, with reference to a well-born person who acts vilely, of a bad disposition, bad-natured (W. 110).

kaziyĕ कज़ियॅ قضيه m. a tumult, broil, wrangling (El. kaziyh).

l ल ل. The tenth (or, if we count the aspirates ch and kh as separate letters, the twelfth) consonant of the Kāshmīrī alphabet in the Roman character. It is the twenty-eighth (or, if we count ṣ, sh, and z, the thirty-first) consonant when written in the Śāradā or Nāgarī character, and the thirtieth consonant when written in the Perso-Arabic character. It is pronounced, as in India proper, with the tip of the tongue touching the front teeth, and not the gums, the resulting sound being softer and more dental than in English.

When this letter is immediately followed by ᵘ or by y (including ĕ, see art. ĕ), it is changed to j. Thus, wôlᵘ वोलु, a large ring, but fem. wöjᵘ वाजू, a small ring; wūlᵘ वुलु, fickle; wōjĕr वोज्यर, fickleness.

lā ل private particle, as in lā-makān لامكان adj. with no abode, without a dwelling-place, inexistent (as an epithet of the Deity) (H. vii, 29).

[In this sense it is generally used in the future indicative or past conditional, with the future passive participle of another verb. There are three ways of using it in this sense, viz.:—

(1) the governed verb is put in the fut. pass. part. and agrees with the personal subject, as in lagaw- na ās[i] mĕtran trāwān[i], we should not abandon friends, or

(2) the governed verb is construed passively, as in tĕ lagi (or lagihē) mārün[u] sa zanāna, that woman is proper to be beaten by thee, i.e. thou shouldst beat that woman, or to have suitableness or a harmonious relation, to fit, suit, become (Gr.Gr. 175, 204; K. 1067); to get into vogue or fashion; to be perceived (as such-and-such), to taste (nice, nasty, etc.) (Rām. 1751); (of a crime or the like) to be imputed (to), to be charged (against) (Rām. 1060); to feel sore (of some part of the body) (अधानुभव) (Gr.Gr. 175, 204);

(3) the governed verb is put into the infinitive, which is treated as a verbal noun, as in asĕ tot[u] lagihĕ gatshun, for us, the going there would be proper, i.e. we should go there (K. 34). Cf. Gr.Gr. 113 and Gr.M.];

to be undertaken, to begin (as in bārav lagun, search to be undertaken; similarly, Śiv. 1550, 1720, 1727). [In this sense it is used with the oblique infinitive of another verb to form an inceptive compound, as in suh karani log[u], he began to do; suh log[u] khath lēkhani, he began to write a letter; suh log[u] zanāna mārani, he began to beat the woman] (Gr.Gr. 207; Gr.M.; YZ. 536; Rām. 10, 97, 202, 221, et passim; Śiv. 69, 86, 119, et passim; K. 14, 25, 51, 57, 151, et passim; H. v, 5, 7; viii, 6; x, 1, 7, 8; xii, 1); to apply oneself (to), to set to work (at, dat.), to begin (to, dat.) (used with any noun or infinitive, in much the same sense as above) (K. 40, 56, 136, 156, 229, 235, 241, 261–2–3, 294, 297, 315, 317, 339, 345, et passim); to begin to exist, to begin (e.g. nightfall, H. viii, 9).

m म ـم. The eleventh consonant of the Kāshmīrī alphabet, the twenty-fifth (or, if we count ṣ, sh, and z, the twenty-eighth) consonant when written in the Śāradā or Nāgarī character, and thirty-first consonant when written in the Perso-Arabic character. It has the sound of the letter m in English. In schools its name is mōv mŏ मोव् मॅ.

ma 1 म or mā मा (see bel.) । मा adv. prohibitive particle, used (Gr.Gr. 255) only with the pres. impve., as in ma kar, make thou not, mā karin, let him not make, the ben., as in ma bŏyyĕn, may it not be! God forbid! (Gr.Gr. 252), or, occasionally with the fut. ind. indicating a wish, as in mā lagaham (= lagakh + m), mayst thou not find thyself (H. v, 2). As in the last example, ma or mā is sometimes repeated, under the form of m, as a suffix added to the verb; cf. under mā, bel. It is not used with the pol. impve., with which ma-ta or ma-tā is employed; nor is it used with the fut. impve. or past impve., with which na is employed, as in kàr'izi na, you must not make, kàr'izihē na, you should not have made (Gr.Gr. 255; Gr.M.; W. 96, 151; YZ. 38; Śiv. 52, 425, 539, etc.; Rām. 24, 27, 29, 33, 46, etc.; K. 65; H. xii, 7).

ma-bā म-बा, please do not (Gr.Gr. 256); similarly ma-sö म-सो and other polite forms of prohibition (Gr.Gr. 256), both used in the same way as ma (L.V. 88; Rām. 1342, ma-sa).

ma-ta म-त or ma-tā म-ता । मा नाम adv. prohibitive particle, the same as ma, but generally used only with the pol. impve., as in mata (or matā) karta, please do not make (Gr.Gr. 255, 256; L.V. 53, where it has the force of a negative question; YZ. 142, 266; Śiv. 22, 28, 578, 1247, 1737, 1879 ff.; Rām. 1019; K. 34, 364, 378, 580, 906, 1107). Occasionally ma-ta is used with the pres. impve., as in Śiv. 525. As in the case of ma, ma-ta also may have the polite suffixes bā, sö, etc., added without affecting the sense, beyond adding a further tinge of politeness. Thus mata-bā मत-बा, mata-sö मत-सो, and so on (Gr.Gr. 256); matō मतो (Śiv. 553).

mā मा or (poet., H. v, 9) māh माह । मा नाम adv. the same as ma, ab., q.v. It is also used before or after a verb to indicate a question asked in hesitation (Gr.Gr. 256), as in karān mā chuh or mā chuh karān or mā karān chuh, I wonder if he is making, is he really making? According to El., in this sense it is never the first word in a sentence, but the above is the account given by I.K. VIII, i, 29 (Gr.M.; L.V. 89; Śiv. 23, 335, 575, 593, 795, 807, 1255, 1802, 1897; Rām. 754 ff., etc.; K. 38, 64, 505, 587, 1134, 1157, etc.; H. i, 2; v, 8, 9; vii, 20; viii, 9, 13; x, 5, 12; xii, 23). This word is also used as a negative in the apodosis of a conditional sentence, as in hargāh-ay wuchihē . . . mā mārihē, if he had seen . . . he would not have killed (H. viii, 10); hargāh-kiy sara karihē . . . mā diyihē hukum, if he had investigated . . . he would not have given the order (H. viii, 13).

As in the case of the purely prohibitive ma or mā, this dubitative mā may also be repeated, under the form of a verbal suffix, as in mā lōsĕm (= lōsi + m), I wonder if he is weary (Rām. 234).

ma 3 ـمے, prep. with, along with, together with (used, esp. by Musalmāns, with borrowed Arabic or Persian words) (W. 90).

mai ـمے, see may.

máo (El.), see māv.

mau मौ or mō मो, adv. (prohibition particle, i.q. ma, q.v., but more respectful) (L.V. 30, 36, 72; Śiv. 274, 1003, 1324, 1635, 1671, 1702, 1815; Rām. 727, 816, 1041, etc.). na mō, i.q. mō (Rām. 1231). Cf. mav, mōv.

n न् ن. The twelfth (or, if we count the aspirates ch and kh as separate letters, the fourteenth) consonant of the Kāshmīrī alphabet in the Roman character. It is the twentieth (or, if we count ṣ, sh, and z, the twenty-third) consonant in the Śāradā or in the Nāgarī alphabet, and the thirty-second consonant in the Perso-Arabic alphabet as adapted to Kāshmīrī. In schools it is called nastuv-nŏ नस्तुव्-नॅ. It also, in the case of words directly borrowed from Sanskrit, represents the Sanskrit cerebral nasal ṇ ण्, the sound of which does not occur in Kāshmīrī, although Paṇḍits often write the character when it occurs in the original. Thus, the Sanskrit word guṇa गुण becomes gŏn ग्यन् in Kāshmīrī, but Paṇḍits commonly write it ग्यण् or गुण्. It is pronounced nearly as in English, the sound varying slightly according to the letter which follows it. When, however, it precedes certain palatal letters, it tends to become palatalized. Before u-mātrā and ĕ (i.e. ya) it becomes ñ ञ्, as in yīran यीरन्, an anvil, pl.nom. yīrüñᵘ यीरंञू; from tonᵘ तंनु, thin, we have tañĕr तञर्, thinness; and from the verb ranun रनुन् (first conjugation), to cook, we have a first past participle ronᵘ रंनु, with a feminine rüñᵘ रंञू. When followed by y with any other vowel except a (in which case ya becomes ĕ), it also becomes ñ ञ्, but the y disappears. Thus, the second past participle of ranun रनुन् is ran + yōv रन् + योव्, and becomes rañōv रञोव्. But these changes do not occur in the conjugation of verbs of the third conjugation. Thus, the second past participle of the verb banun बनुन् (third conjugation), to become, is banyōv बन्योव्, not bañōv बञोव्. See Gr.Gr. 28, 29, 226; Gr.M., p. 22.

na न ںہ । नहि adv. particle of negation, equivalent to 'not', 'no', 'neither', 'nor'. In a direct sentence it is usually suffixed to the verb, as in gashi-na, he will not go; pokᵘ-na, he did not proceed; gayōv, he went, gayō-na, he did not go; chuh, he is, chuna, he is not (p. 159*a*, l. 14) (Gr.Gr. 177, 255; W. 96, 151; L.V. 35, 98, 104, etc.; Śiv. 5, 35, 45, etc.; Rām. 74, 77, 104, etc.; H. i, 6; ii, 4, 8, 9, 11, etc.; and so elsewhere passim). When two verbs are both negatived, the na is prefixed, not suffixed, to each, as in na gashi na diyi, he will neither go nor give.

This word is not used with the simple or the polite imperative (see ma), but is used as a prohibitive with the future imperative, as in dàpⁱzĕm-na, you must not speak to me (H. v, 8); kàrⁱzi-na, you must not make (H. viii, 1; xii, 6); wàsⁱzi-na, you must not descend (H. xii, 11); màngⁱzĕs-na, you must not demand from her (H. xii, 18).

In a subordinate sentence, na precedes the verb, as in tàmⁱ tàṭⁱ par, yuthᵘ na wuḍith gashi, he cut the feathers, so that it should fly away (Gr.M.).

When employed to negative a verbal adjective or noun, na precedes the word it negatives, as in na-bananī, impossible; but, if the sentence, not the word is negatived, na, as usual, is suffixed to the verb, as in chu-na bananī, it is not possible.

With an indefinite pronoun, it usually precedes the pronoun, as in na kūh, no one (p. 389*b*, l. 38); na kĕh, nothing (id., l. 40). Cf., however, kĕh-na, nothing (p. 389*b*, l. 45; p. 390*a*, l. 18); kuni-na, nowhere (p. 453*b*, l. 26).

Similarly, it often precedes an interjection, as in na-bā, no, Sir! (is) not, Sir! (Gr.Gr. 102); na-dĕd, no, Madam! (used in addressing a mother or elderly female) (W. 96); na-sa, no, Sir! (Śiv 1247)

Used alone as interj. indicating negation, no! (K.Pr. 18).

Between two words a single na is often equivalent to 'neither . . . nor', as in ōr na yōr, neither there nor here (p. 41*b*, l. 16), and in such cases sometimes has a special idiomatic force, as in dāsh na dāsh, a person's entire property (apparently, what is lasting and what is not lasting) (p. 252*b*, l. 39); höhⁱ na pröhⁱ, (occurring) suddenly over and over again (p. 325*a*, l. 18); pĕv na pĕv, while in the act of falling (K.Pr. 175); cf. zĕn nā zĕn, bel. Or na may be repeated, as in na . . . na (or ta na), neither . . . nor (K.Pr. 46). So, na . . . ta न . . . त, neither . . . nor. na . . . na . . . ta, nor . . . nor . . . nor (L.V. 15). na danan ta mĕtran न दनन् त म्यत्रन् । न स्वार्थे न परार्थम् adv. neither for one's own profit nor for another's (e.g. expenditure, loss, etc.). na dazüñᵘ ta wutüñᵘ न दज़ंञू त वुतंञू । चिताखेदादिराहित्यम् f. neither being burnt nor being consumed by fire, the being unaffected by one's own, or another's, prosperity or adversity, stoicism.

na-ta 1 न-त adv. and not, nor (L.V. 37, 96, 97; Śiv. 1540; YZ. 7; K.Pr. 135). na-ta 2 न-त । यद्वा adv. not then, i.e. (if) not then, or else, otherwise, or (El.; W. 99; L.V. 19, 71; K.Pr. 150; Śiv. 171, 311, 593, etc.; Rām. 268, 1342, 1588; K. 559, 571, 1146, etc.; YZ. 83, 105, 119, 180); aki na-ta aki laṭi, at one time or another (Śiv. 1564). na-ta 3 न-त । नहि नाम adv. not verily, forsooth not (Rām. 63). na-tay न-तय् । अन्यथा, i.q. na-ta 2, ab. or else, otherwise (tay = ta + ay 2) (Śiv. 682; Rām. 103, 325, 401, etc.). na-zi न-शि, an emph. equivalent for na, as in na-zi pazi, it is not at all proper (K. 34; so K. 82, 453).

nā 1 ना, i.q. na, ab. (L.V. 2, 9, etc.). nā . . . nā, neither . . . nor (L.V. 7). zĕn nā zĕn, they are being born, (and) they are not being born, immediately on being born, while they are yet being born (L.V. 47); cf. pĕv na pĕv, ab. nā 2 ना (= na + a 3 or ā 1) adv. a negative interrogative suffix added to verbs, as in karān chunā (chuh + na + ā 1), does he not make? karyōn-nā, did he not make? karān chĕkh-nā (na + a 3), does not thou (fem.) make? cf. a 3 (Gr.Gr. 180; L.V. 83; Śiv. 871, 882, 1096, etc.; Rām. 145, 152, 154, 329, 540, 1051, etc.; H. vi, 1; viii, 7; ix, 7, etc.; K. 369). As a negative interrogative, this word often has the force of an emphatic affirmative, like the English 'is it not good?' meaning 'it is very good' (Śiv. 573 ff., 651, 793, 838, 1134, etc.; Rām. 188, 193, 668, 757, 759; K. 101, 126, 1171).

nau नौ or nō नो adv. no certainly (in addressing a man. In addressing a woman, nāy, bel., is used) (W. 96; Rām. 216, 218, 293–4, etc.; H. vii, 23; xi, 15; K.Pr. 135).

nay 1 नय् (= na + ay 1) adv. a negative interrogative suffix, i.q. nā 2, but used when addressing a woman, as in karān chĕkh-nay, dost thou (fem.) not make? cf. a 3, esp. p. 26*a*, l. 40 (Gr.Gr. 180). nay 2 नय (= na + ay 2) conj., a suffix indicating a negative supposition. If not, unless. It may be appended to a verb, as in karihē-nay, if he had not made, but is more usually attached to the subject of the sentence, as in rūd-nay pĕyihē, if rain had not fallen; sunay (= suh + nay) karihē, if he had not made; cf. ay 2 (El. nai; Gr.Gr. 257; Śiv. 168, 634, 1236, etc.; Rām. 165, 338, 496, etc.; K. 1107, 1123; K.Pr. 46, 100). nay 3 नय् (for 4, 5, see s.vv.) (= na + emph. y) not verily, not at all (Śiv. 46, 327, 348, 579, etc.; H. v, 5; ix, 6, 8, 10, 12, etc.; YZ. 23).

nish निश् or nishĕ निश् । समीपम् adv. and postpos. [governing dat. and abl. In the first case it indicates primarily rest in a place or motion to a place, and in the second case (with an important exception noted below) motion from a place. In the first case it is the equivalent of the Hindī pās, in the second of pās sē. According to some authorities nish is used only in the sense of rest in a place or motion to, and nishĕ only in the sense of motion from, but this distinction is not commonly observed in manuscripts].

A. As adv., near, close by (nishĕ, L.V. 30, 46; Śiv. 251; Rām. 1552).

B. Governing the dat., at the side of, beside, alongside, near, at hand, close by (nish, W. 97; Śiv. 683, 702, 1066; Rām. 313, 757, 1246, 1466; H. x, 5, 12; K. 170; nishĕ, Gr.Gr. 13; Gr.M.; L.V. 31; Śiv. 572, 727; Rām. 992, 1283; H. ii, 9; vii, 20; x, 4); asĕ nish, near us, i.e. in our family or caste (such-and-such a thing is allowed or prohibited) (Rām. 324); amis nishĕ, with him, i.e. his custom or nature (is such-and-such) (Rām. 1661); pānas nishĕ, near oneself, in one's own heart (Rām. 18, 45, 129, 236); nyūn pānas nish, he took (it) with him (K. 204); in the possession of (mĕ nishĕ chuh sĕṭhāh, I have plenty, Gr.M.) (nish, Śiv. 432, 900–1; Rām. 1524; nishĕ, Śiv. 58–60);

(after verbs of motion, bringing, sending, showing, etc.) to, up to (tim tsal^{l} rāzas nishĕ, they fled to the king) (nish, Śiv. 698, 880, etc.; Rām. 81, 133, 223, 255, etc.; H. ii, 11; iii, 2; v, 8, 10; viii, 5, 13; x, 1–5, 11, etc.; K. 485; nishĕ, Śiv. 208, 388, 720, 847, etc.; Rām. 1710; H. ii, 7; x, 7; xii, 19, 22; K. 37, 81–2, 123, etc.); nishĕ pānas (to summon) to oneself (K. 374); tas nishĕ prakhoṭ^{u}, known to him (K. 128);

in the opinion of (so-and-so) (chuh mĕ nishĕ jān, in my opinion it is good, Gr.M.) (nish, Rām. 1460; nishĕ, Rām. 1650, 1656); owing to, because of [in this sense more often governing the abl. (nishĕ, Rām. 29)].

C. Governing the abl., with the important exception that, in the case of singular masculine animate nouns, it optionally governs the dative, from near, from (Gr.Gr. 48, 49; W. 98, nishi) (nish, with abl., Śiv. 22, 125, 681, etc.; Rām. 83, 1304, 1386; with dat., Śiv. 431, etc.; Rām. 895, 1060, 1177, 1190; nishĕ, with abl., Śiv. 61, 99, 106, etc.; Rām. 2, 20, 27, 111–12, 174, etc.; H. vi, 12; vii, 2; K. 114, 212; with dat., Śiv. 30, etc.; Rām. 83, 424, 683, 895, 1347, etc.; K. 392, 576, 630); occasionally, in poetry, it takes the dative case even of an inanimate noun, as in wanas nishĕ, from the forest (Rām. 1198), phalis n°, (issued) from the seed (Rām. 1456); from, owing to, because of (nishĕ, L.V. 27, Rām. 802); with, by means of (rājĕ nish sēr, sated with royalty, Rām. 365; nāra nish, by means of fire, Rām. 1203; with dat., K. 573); from, beyond, more than (nishĕ, L.V. 48); used after verbs of fearing or the like, as in chuh dāndas nishĕ khōṭsān, he is afraid of the bull (an. sg. m.) (Gr.M.); mŏkalana nishĕ nā-wumēd, despairing of accomplishment (Gr.M.); (nish, with dat., Rām. 932).

Governing the abl. (or an. sg. dat.), or the abl. (or an. sg. dat.) of the genitive, it indicates comparison, as in rŏpa nishĕ chuh sŏn jān, gold is better than silver (Gr.Gr. 49); kañĕ-handi (or kañi) nishĕ chuh trakur^{u}, he is harder than a stone (id.) ñ ञ् ں. The thirteenth (or, if we count the aspirates ch and kh as separate letters, the fifteenth) consonant of the Kāshmīrī alphabet in the Roman character. It is the tenth consonant in the Śāradā or in the Nāgarī alphabet, and has no special place in the Perso-Arabic alphabet, in which it is usually represented by ں, as in ںٗ for wuñ वुञ्; سںں for sapüñᵘ सपंञू; and اںک for üñᵘkh अंञूख्.

This letter is of frequent occurrence in Kāshmīrī, and its sound, differing from that of an English or Sanskrit ny, is that of the ñ in the Spanish word campaña, or of that of the gn in the French campagne, being represented in the International alphabet by ɲ.

In schools this letter is named khŏna phuṭᵘ ñĕ खुन फुटि ञ. Kāshmīrī Paṇḍits distinguish it from the Sanskrit ñ ञ्, and mark it with a subscribed dot (ञ्) to show that it is what they call aprasiddha, i.e. not used in Sanskrit. As, however, the Sanskrit letter never occurs except in conjunction with other palatal consonants, and as, in Kāshmīrī, ञ् is principally used by itself, and not in conjunction with other consonants, there is no danger of the two being confused, and in this Dictionary the dot is omitted, as in wuñ, written वुञ्, not वुञ्. Although thus considered aprasiddha ñ ञ् is not (except in words borrowed directly from Sanskrit) the nasal corresponding to the other aprasiddha consonants ṭ ट्, ṭh ठ्, and z ज़्. With these, n न्, not ñ ञ्, is used, as in nṭa न्ट, nṭha न्ठ, and nza न्ज़. So, in Śiv. 1489, we have the Kāshmīrī word pənṭh पान्ठ, five, and also the borrowed Sanskrit word pañṭa पञ्ट.

This letter seldom begins a word in Kāshmīrī, and in the few cases in which it occurs as an initial, it shows a tendency to assume the sound of ny न्य्, so that in nearly every case a word so beginning may be written with either ñ ञ् or ny न्य्, although the two characters have quite different pronunciations. Thus, the word ñoñᵘ is sometimes written अंञु and sometimes न्यंञु.

This letter is, in the first place, the regular Tadbhava representative of a Sanskrit ny. Thus, Skt. dhānyam becomes the Kāshmīrī dāñĕ; Skt. puṇyam, Ksh. pŏñĕ; Skt. kanyakā, Ksh. kañĕkh; and Skt. pāṇiyam (through pāṇiyam*, pāṇyam*), Ksh. pôñᵘ. The letter is also found as the representative of a dental n न् followed by u-mātrā, ĕ, or y, for examples of which see art. n.

As in the case of y य् and sh श्, the inherent vowel of ñ ञ् is ĕ, not a, so that ञ must be transliterated ñĕ, not ña. When followed by u-mātrā, as in ñᵘ ञू, Paṇḍits commonly omit the u-mātrā, which they look upon as inherent in the closed consonant, and write merely ञ्. This, however, leads to confusion, as there would then be no distinction between, e.g. karawañ, the wages for doing, and karavüñᵘ, she who does, if both are written करवञ्, as is frequently done. It is therefore better to write each word fully, as in करवञ and करवंञू, and this course is followed in the present Dictionary.

p प پ. The fourteenth (or, if we count the aspirates ch and kh as separate letters, the sixteenth) consonant of the Kāshmīrī alphabet in the Roman character, the twenty-first (or, if we include ṣ, ṣh, and z, the twenty-fourth) consonant when written in the Śāradā or the Nāgarī character, and the third when written in the Perso-Arabic character. Its Kāshmīrī name is paḍur[i] pö पडुर् पो. It is sounded like an English p, but without any trace of the aspiration which is often heard in English when that letter is pronounced.

The aspirate of p is ph फ پھ, which is the twenty-second (or, if we include ṣ, ṣh, and z, the twenty-fifth) consonant of the Kāshmīrī alphabet when written in the Śāradā or the Nāgarī character. Its Kāshmīrī name is phariñ[u] phö फरिञ् फो.

This aspirate letter ph is also used to represent the Persian and Arabic letter f ف, which occurs only in words borrowed from those languages. In such cases the ف is usually pronounced in Kāshmīrī like an ordinary ph. Thus faqīr فقیر is usually pronounced phakīr फकीर्. The aspiration is, however, not so strong as in India proper, so that some persons pronounce the word, and even write it, pakīr पकीर्. In the middle or at the end of a word some people are inclined to retain the f-sound, or something like it, so that we often hear mupht मुफ्त مفت pronounced muft, and māph माफ् (for معاف) pronounced māf or, as in Persian, mu'āf.

The letters p and ph are two of the few Kāshmīrī consonants which are never epenthetically affected by a succeeding vowel.

pā पा پا m. the foot, in Persian phrases, such as az-pā, (fallen) at the feet (Rām. 154); sar-ba-pā, from head to foot (YZ. 69); bar-pā بر پا or (Rām. 573) bar-pāh बर्-पाह्, adj. e.g. fixed, established. Cf. pusht-ė-pā, s.v. pusht.
